

Conduit Information

Any individual artist interested in applying for Staten Island Arts grants may apply directly to the individual artist programs or they may use a conduit or fiscal sponsor to apply for organizational program support.

An organization must be a nonprofit to be eligible to apply as an organization.

If the organization does not have its nonprofit status it may apply through a sponsoring conduit organization.

What is a conduit?

A conduit is a nonprofit organization that acts as a fiscal agent and “sponsors” an individual artist or organization that does not have its own nonprofit status.

Who is eligible?

Any nonprofit Staten Island organization that has been established for more than one year and has not applied directly to the New York State Council on the Arts (NYSCA) within the last year or received more than $2,000 from the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs (DCA).

An organization may serve as a conduit for one artist or organization only.

What does a conduit do?

A conduit’s sole responsibility is to act as the fiscal conduit for Staten Island Arts funds by accepting the grant check from Staten Island Arts and dispersing the money to the grantee in accordance with the Letter of Agreement (see attached). Some conduits provide technical assistance or other support, while others act solely as a fiscal agent.

A conduit does not have any responsibility to control the artist’s work or their Staten Island Arts application (unless offering administrative assistance). The grantee is responsible for the successful and timely completion of the project and for preparation of the final report and other documentation.

Why would an organization agree to be a conduit?

Many nonprofit organizations want to contribute to the development of Staten Island-based arts, especially since they get credit for doing so. All publicity on the grantee’s project credits the sponsoring organization. All manner of arts, cultural, neighborhood, social service and religious organizations have served as conduits for Staten Island grantees. Establishing a relationship with a local organization can be mutually beneficial. They often have space available for rehearsals or for shows or have materials around that you can use in your work. They can be an invaluable resource when it comes to administrative support and building an audience for your work.
